

BETSY McCALL AT THE FLOWER SHOW

Everybody in our school was busy planting things and growing things for the big flower show we have every year—it's to raise money so the library can buy more books. The show takes place on the library steps if the weather is nice, or in the auditorium if it's raining. This year, though, we had it outdoors, because the weather was just perfect. Grown-ups paid fifty cents' admission. Well, anyway, some of the plants were beautiful. They came from just about all over. Suzy, my best friend, brought an azalea plant, so huge she could hardly carry it, and with a zillion pink flowers on it. I just knew it would get the Blue Ribbon First Prize, and it did. I got Honorable Mention for my white jonquils, the first in our town. My daddy bought the bulbs in New York. My little cousin Linda got a prize, too. Guess for what! The most unusual plant. The judges tried not to smile at it: a long, stringy thing with scraggly leaves and a flower that wouldn't open. They couldn't think what to name it. But Linda could. She said it was a lazy daisy because it wouldn't keep its head up. I love that. Don't you?

Betsy and Linda are wearing brown-and-white dotted swiss and white cotton, so pretty for warm weather. Betsy's low-belted jumper has a brown blouse. Sizes 7 to 14; about $15. Linda's sleeveless dress goes with the long-sleeved coat. Sizes 3 to 6x; about $15. Her full-skirted dress, with short jacket, about $11

These three outfits, by Betsy Daniels for Mon Amie, may be seen at Bonwit Teller, New York; Julius Garfinckel, Washington, D.C.; Kaufmann's, Pittsburgh; and Davison's, Atlanta
